THE LAW SCHOOL. — Mr. Austin Wakeman Scott, A.B., LL.B. 1909, who during the past year has been Dean of the College of Law of the State University of Iowa, has returned to his position as Assistant Professor of Law in this Law School. His return has caused several changes in the curriculum, but the bulk of it remains substantially as it was. Professor Pound will give the course in Equity III, while Trusts and Pleading will again be taught by Assistant Professor Scott. Professor Wambaugh's Insurance will be only a half course. The course on New York Practice will be given by Mr. Allan Reuben Campbell, A.B., LL.B. 1902, a former editor of this Review. Patent Law will take the place of the Law of Mining and Irrigation as an extra course, and will be conducted by Mr. Odin Barnes Roberts, S.B., A.M., LL.B. A new departure is marked by a short course on Brief-making, to be given by Mr. William G. Thompson, A.B., LL.B., 1891. Arrangements have also been made by the Law School Faculty for a class in Physical Culture at the Gymnasium open to all students of this Law School.

THE AMES COMPETITION. — A few revisions in the rules governing the competition have been found necessary, but its great success last year has assured its continuance in substantially the same form, an elimination tournament between the second-year law clubs in the argument of moot cases. The prizes of $200 and $100, out of the fund given by Mrs. James Barr Ames, were won last year by the Choate and Bryce Clubs respectively, who contested in the finals. The supervision of the competition is again in the hands of the Board of Student Advisers, which this year is made up of Zechariah Chafee, Jr., Chairman, Maxwell Barus, George S. Brengle, Ralph O. Brewster, Earle T. Fiddler, Robert W. Perkins, Jr., Vincent Starzinger, and G. Tracy Vought, Jr.
